

NOTICE AND CLARIFICATION OF

INVESTMENT RISKS, DISCLOSURES AND LIMITATIONS

The articles, asset allocation strategies, investment preferences and information appearing on this Web site are the opinions of the authors and do not reflect individual investor's risk and return goals. Individual investors should consult with their financial professional about how to implement these opinions or strategies, if desirable, into a portfolio that is suitable for their personal financial goals and risk tolerance. Investments in retirement plans and of retirement plan assets are long-term investments intended to be withdrawn and used upon the event of reaching normal retirement age only. Investors should maintain a long-term perspective regarding investment decisions. Investment decisions made within specific UPAL pooled funds and Retirement Program investment portfolios do not necessarily reflected in the viewpoints of any individual investor or group of investors.

This material is not intended to be relied upon as a forecast, market research or investment advice, and is not a recommendation, offer or solicitation to buy or sell any securities or to adopt any particular investment strategy. The opinions expressed are as of January 1, 2010, and may change as subsequent conditions vary. Individual portfolio managers for UPAL may have opinions and/or make investment decisions that, in certain respects, may not be consistent with the information contained on this Web site. The information and opinions contained in this material are derived from proprietary and nonproprietary sources deemed by UPAL to be reliable, are not necessarily all-inclusive and are not guaranteed as to accuracy. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. There is no guarantee that any forecasts or general advice made will come to fruition. Reliance upon information in these materials or on this Web site is at the sole discretion of the reader. Investment involves risks. Stock and bond values fluctuate in price so that the value of an investment can go down depending on market conditions. International investing involves additional risks, including risks related to foreign currency fluctuations, limited liquidity, more or less government regulation and the possibility of substantial volatility due to adverse political, economic or other developments. These risks are typically heightened for investments in emerging markets. Investments in the natural resources industries can be significantly affected by events relating to those industries, such as variations in the commodities markets, weather, disease, embargoes, international, political and economic developments, the success of exploration projects, tax and other government regulations, as well as other factors. The two main risks related to fixed income investments are interest rate risk and credit risk. Typically, when interest rates rise, there is a corresponding decline in the market value of bonds. Credit risk refers to the possibility that the issuer of the bond will not be able to make principal and interest payments. There may be less information available on the financial condition of issuers of municipal securities than for public corporations. The market for municipal bonds may be less liquid than for taxable bonds. A portion of the income from municipal securities may be taxable. Upon distribution, retirement plan assets may be subject to federal and state income taxes at the investor's individual income tax rate, penalties and possibly the Alternative Minimum Tax (AMT).

Certain matters discussed on this Web site and in material appearing herein include forward-looking statements – statements that discuss expected future results based on current and pending projections, forecasts or historic market performance. Such forward-looking statements can be identified by words such as “anticipates,” “believes,” “expects,” “planned,” “scheduled,” “could,” “continues,” “estimates,” “forecasts,” “might,” “potential,” “projects” or similar expressions. Similarly, statements that describe future intentions, plans, objectives or goals are also forward-looking statements. The forward-looking statements included are only made as of the date of publication and UPAL and/or its agents and fiduciaries undertake no obligation to update forward-looking statements to reflect subsequent events or circumstances on this Web site or elsewhere.

You should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses of any UPAL pooled fund carefully before investing. Expenses are disclosed by actual client monthly billing statements. Fund Fact Sheets are also posted on this Web site. The Fund Fact Sheets are updated twice each year – January 1 and July 1 – and are posted shortly thereafter. Other information about the funds is available by calling 918/747-5585. You should be read the Fund Fact Sheets carefully and call UPAL to address any of your questions or concerns before investing.
