UPAL Fixed Income Asset Allocation Model commenced on 9/30/1997.

*The Fixed Income Strategic Allocation Benchmark is a blended benchmark comprised of 84% UPAL Core Bond Benchmark, 15% UPAL Short Term Income Benchmark and 1% Citigroup 3-month T-bill. The benchmark has been modified during the model's existence. Further information is available upon request.

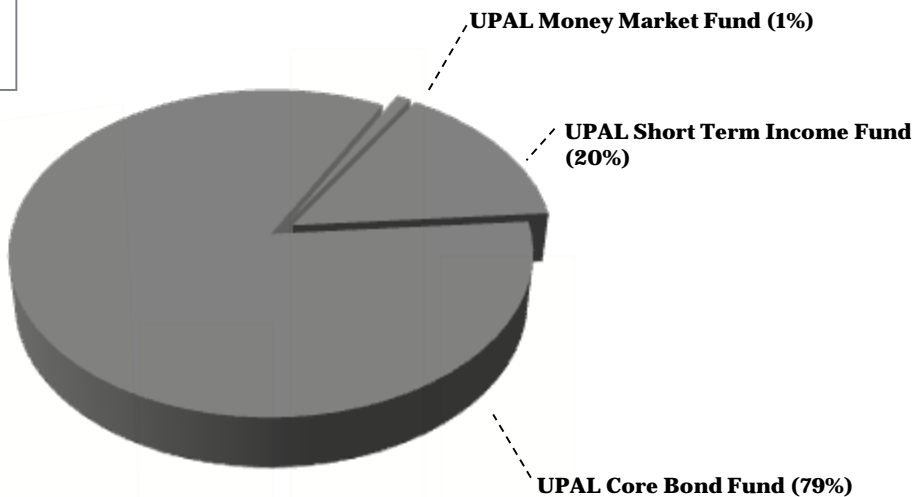

The underlying asset allocation shown below represents the long-term strategic target employed in the model as of 8/1/2012. These strategic weights may deviate within pre-defined ranges on a tactical, short-term basis (as indicated in allocation descriptions below). Historical returns of the model include asset allocation shifts as well as the returns of terminated managers.

Fixed income investors exhibit high levels of risk-aversion, willing and/or able to withstand very little probability of loss. They are primarily concerned with capital preservation, steady and stable portfolio value, and the generation of current income. Fixed income investors are susceptible to interest rate fluctuations as well as the potential for diminishing purchasing power over time.
